

CENTER FOR LATIN AMERICAN STUDIES PRESENTS

SPANISH K-12 PRONUNCIATION WORKSHOP

FRIDAY, MARCH 19, 2021

10AM-12PM (EST)

ZOOM

The Center for Latin American Studies is excited to host this virtual Spanish K-12 Pronunciation Workshop for educators! Teachers who participate will receive 2 contact hours or .2 CEUs. Open to all teachers but most suitable for Spanish language K-12 educators. This workshop will be led by Paloma Pinillos Chávez (The Ohio State University). Space is limited. Register by Friday, March 12, 2021. Accepted applicants will receive a confirmation email with Zoom link.

If you have any questions, please contact vocal.4@osu.edu.

Register here: <https://go.osu.edu/k12spanishpronunciationworkshop>

Paloma Pinillos Chávez is a PhD candidate in Hispanic Linguistics. She is from Lima, Peru, where she studied her BA and MA in Linguistics. She studied in Spain for two years and got her MA in Phonetics and Phonology. Her primary research interest is the production and perception of English-Accented Spanish in the US. She studies the impact of English-Accented Spanish in the relationship between Latino patients and non-native Spanish-speaking health professionals. Her work analyzes which phonetic and phonological cues of Spanish are perceived as non-native by Latino patients and how the perception of a non-native accent develops different levels of reliability with the health professional. Other academic interest include second language learning, technology-enhanced learning, and performance pedagogy within the Latinx community.

